SING, SHEERAN

An ACC full of screaming fans greeted fast-rising English singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran Thursday, touring to support his second studio album, titled X. TOM PANDI/FOR METRO

Beer shortfall is all in your 'head'

A pint is 20 ounces, guys.
Deficit blamed on the popularity of small glasses that can't hold the foam

The federal government is cracking down on bars that advertise a pint of beer but fail to pour a full 20 ounces — and most of those tested by Torstar News Service are coming up short.

Of the 15 downtown Toronto establishments Torstar visited, only two poured a full 20 ounces of draught beer: Firkin on Harbour and Hurricanes Roadhouse.

Several came close, at around 18 ounces, while others were as much as six ounces off.

Measurement Canada's Fairness at the Pumps act, introduced last month, says businesses serving a pint that contains less than 19.5 ounces of liquid (head doesn't count) can face fines ranging from $250 to $2,000.

"The agency investigates complaints of suspected inaccurate measurement and institutes corrective action where necessary," said Stéfanie Power, a spokeswoman with Industry Canada, via email.

A variety of watering holes were visited to check whether they measure up. Those that didn't cited the popularity of branded glassware that typically holds less than 20 ounces and the fact the government measure doesn't include head.

The Strath Pub uses 20-ounce glasses, but manager Tony Cutrone said not all of that can be liquid.

"You have to reserve two ounces for the head," he said.

Foam adds to the aroma and overall tasting experience, he said, suggesting the onus is on breweries to provide larger glassware.

Pint glasses from Steamwhistle, Granville Island Brewing and Molson Coors all max out at 20 ounces. Dinetz, a wholesaler that services the GTA restaurant industry, carries 22- and 24-ounce pint glasses, but staff say those aren't popular.

Tory criticizes Chow's bus plan as election battle resumes

Mayoral election. Campaign returns closer to normalcy on Thursday, but Tory and Chow still approach Doug Ford delicately

Toronto's mayoral election campaign briefly returned to something resembling normalcy on Thursday: John Tory questioned the cost and feasibility of Olivia Chow's bus plan, Chow claimed Tory has no short-term transit policy at all.

Both of them, though, continued to tread delicately around the race's other leading candidate — whom the incumbent mayor endorsed in an audio statement he recorded in a hospital.

Before Rob Ford released his message in support of Doug Ford, Tory criticized Chow's bus proposal in detail during an otherwise high-minded address to the Toronto Region Board of Trade.

Chow spent the first months of her campaign emphasizing her promise to improve rush-hour service by 10 per cent, "now." Tory noted that the TTC says it does not have the buses or the bus-storage capacity to immediately improve bus service during the peak periods.

Tory also said Chow is not being honest about the true cost of the proposal. Chow has said it is $15 million. That is her estimate of the operational costs of running more buses, but it doesn't include the cost of buying new buses or paying for a new garage.

"Ms. Chow admitted that it would cost $105 million for the new buses and another $100 million would be needed to build the garage. So we seem to be quite a long way from $15 million," Tory said.

Tory concluded the attack by referring to a phrase she deployed at a Wednesday debate: "Truth matters."

"Ms. Chow is fond of saying 'truth matters.' I would go a step further and say the truth hurts," he said.

Chow quickly scheduled a news conference to respond. She said, again, that she would indeed find a way to boost rush hour service immediately — possibly by extending the life of some old buses in the interim period before new buses could be secured.

She did not dispute Tory's assertion that long-term improvements at rush hour would require a total investment of more than $15 million. But she argued that Tory is misleading people by conflating the city's separate operating and capital budgets.

In between the Tory speech and the Chow response, Doug Ford's campaign released an audio statement from the mayor, who has been diagnosed with a rare cancer.

The recording was overtly political. Speaking in a gravelly voice, sounding audibly tired, Ford said he was beginning chemotherapy in "a few hours," pledged to "beat" the disease, and thanked residents for their "overwhelming kindness and support." He also urged them to vote for Doug Ford.

"You, the people of Toronto, have been with me since day one. Now I ask you to throw your support behind Doug," he said.

Airport security

Experts to address potential threat of drones

Airport investigators, fresh after marking the 9/11 anniversary, are gathering in the GTA to share information on the latest security threats to the flying public.

Police say threats made on social media against airports, including Pearson, and the threat of attacks by unmanned aerial vehicles (UAV), or drones, are some of the issues facing investigators at a conference next month.

More than 130 airport cops and security experts from around the world will be here for the third annual International Airport Investigators' Training Symposium, from Oct. 7 to 9 at the Westin-Bristol Place Hotel near Pearson.

Det. Steve Rowland, of Peel Regional Police, says information gleaned from social media can be double-checked with other sources to determine if a threat is genuine.

"Social media is monitored at many airports," said Rowland. "We can use social media intelligence in relation with other information to find out what's going on at the airport."

Police say the chatter is monitored through the use of computer software that detects threats against passengers and aircraft travelling through Canada's busiest airport.

Keywords are entered into a software program that searches for hits on dozens of popular social media sites. The hits can be tracked to an end-user, police say.

A huge concern is posed by long-range UAVs that can be purchased in stores and flown from concealed areas over airport property.

"There are no laws in place against flying a UAV around airport property," Rowland said.

"Anyone could purchase one of these things and just fly them. There is no legislation as to where they can be flown."

Airport cops say criminals can use the UAVs to take classified photos, drop an object or contraband on airport grounds, or deliberately fly into parked or incoming jets.

"This is a real concern for police," said Rowland, who is one of the organizers of the event. "We are hoping to have legislation in place soon."

Air Canada pilot Capt. Dr. Robert Barrett will be speaking about the dangers posed by the UAVs to incoming planes around an airport.

Barrett said the manufacture and sale of UAVs is one "of the fastest growing industries in the world."

There's a new kind of hockey in town — and it's electric

Game on. Electric hockey's caught on big in Denmark, and now enthusiasts are hoping it will be embraced in Canada

Owen McGonigal has always loved hockey, and today he's helping bring a whole new version of the sport to Canada — with a little royal help.

The 10-year-old London resident is Canada's muscular dystrophy ambassador, and he will be participating Friday in Canada's first-ever electric hockey exhibition.

The sport is played in special electric chairs with joystick-operated bumpers that hit the ball and allow individuals with mobility issues to play Canada's national sport.

"This new chair is great for people with MD and other disabilities like mine," McGonigal said. "It allows us to play and be more independent."

A demonstration of the game will be held at 3 p.m. Friday at Evergreen Brickworks, and is being given the royal bump by Denmark's Crown Prince Frederik and Princess Mary, who will be in attendance.

Prince Frederik has long been an ambassador for electric hockey. A special fund with proceeds from a special coin released on the prince's 18th birthday helped to get the sport going in Denmark, where it is now quite popular. There are also some 50 club teams spread among the Nordic nations.

McGonigal is hopeful that the sport will find a permanent home in Canada. He is a serious sledge hockey player, but the progressive nature of his disease could eventually force him to stop playing as he may not always have the upper-body strength to manoeuvre a stick.

If electric hockey comes to Canada, McGonigal will be able to continue to play organized team sports as long as he has the capacity to operate a joystick.

The special chair that makes the game so accessible is designed by UB-Let, a Danish company. Together with the prince and princess, they are pushing to have electric hockey included in the Paralympics by 2020.

"If it became part of the Games, playing could very possibly be in my future," said McGonigal.

Liberty Village startup offers TTC alternative

Brett Chang, right, and his partner Taylor Scollon say they've noticed the frustration of commuters in Liberty Village. DAVID COOPER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

How much would you pay to improve your commute?

A Toronto startup is betting that the transit-starved residents of Liberty Village, who struggle to board the overcrowded King streetcar, will be willing to contribute at least $25 to try a bus alternative.

Brett Chang, 23, and Taylor Scollon, 24, the founders of Line Six Transit, are crowdfunding $2,500 to test a service they are calling the Liberty Village Express from Oct. 6 to 10.

In less than a month they've signed on 58 backers and raised $1,450 toward a bus that would run from Pirandello and East Liberty streets to Union Station.

"People are so fed up riding the King streetcar they're interested in jumping on the bus," said Chang.

"We picked Liberty Village because we've seen that there are major transit challenges facing that community. There's hyper-urbanization, there's rapid growth and the city has not been responsive to the transit needs of that community."

A Kickstarter-type crowdsourcing site will gather a group of people interested in travelling to the same destination at the same time.

Prices and perks

Liberty Village Express contributors won't pay a fare. For a $25 contribution, a rider gets a reserved seat for the entire week; $50 buys two seats for the week. Seventy-five dollars gets two seats and a T-shirt. The website also promises a morning coffee.

"What we want to do is provide a platform for people who want to organize their own transit, and we'll handle the logistics," said Chang, who wants to expand the business once the Liberty Village Express is up and running.

The TTC has a legal monopoly in Toronto. But Chang says Line Six is on solid ground. The City of Toronto Act exempts "vehicles exclusively chartered to transport a group of persons for a specified trip ... for a group fee."

A FULLY-ACCESSIBLE TTC FOR ALL IS A MUST

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

Earlier this week, the TTC held its seventh annual Public Forum on Accessible Transit.

This yearly event is a meeting of customers, accessibility advocates, TTC staff and members of the Advisory Committee on Accessible Transit (ACAT). It enables TTC staff to receive direct feedback about the service that we provide to customers who need accessible transit, and for us to report back on the strides we're making to become a fully accessible network.

The forum is a well-attended and eagerly anticipated event each year, and this year's was no exception. Staff were on-hand for the first hour for one-on-one discussions and to answer questions from attendees about TTC services. The last two hours were dedicated to a formal update from staff, but lots of time was given to questions and comments from TTC customers.

At last year's event, I committed to spend a day in a wheelchair to see, for myself, some of the challenges our customers in mobility devices face. I recently kept that promise and sampled Wheel-Trans, bus, and subway services in the company of an ACAT member. I was in plain clothes so as to make the experience as low key as possible.

It was a sobering experience to be out of my comfort zone and to have to rely on ramps and elevators to get around. I was also reminded just how much remains to be done to improve signage at a consistent level, to deliver a fully accessible fleet and to retrofit remaining stations with elevators, accessible fare gates and other features many of us take for granted.

What was encouraging was the unfailingly polite, kind and professional attitude I encountered from TTC staff, nearly all of whom were completely unaware of my identity.

A single day, of course, does not replicate the true obstacles faced by riders with mobility challenges; nor was that its purpose. In accepting the challenge, I was demonstrating my support for a fully accessible transit system and to see what more the TTC needs to do on delivering a transit system that makes all Torontonians proud.

At last year's event, I committed to spend a day in a wheelchair to see, for myself, some of the challenges our customers in mobility devices face.

FREE WIFI CONTINUES TO EXPAND TO SUBWAY STATIONS

The TTC and BAI Canada have expanded free wireless internet service to Wellesley Station. Wi-Fi service is already available at Bloor-Yonge, St. George and Bay subway stations.

To log on, customers can choose "TCONNECT" Wi-Fi on their mobile device, open a browser, and click on "Next."

Installation work has started at College, Dundas and Union stations, with full Wi-Fi service planned for 17 stations in the lower loop, plus Spadina Station, ahead of the Toronto 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Games.

Free Wi-Fi connectivity at all underground TTC subway stations will be available by 2017.

Rookie trustee candidates sign 'students first' pledge

Saying they are "frustrated by the scandals" at the Toronto District School Board, four rookie trustee candidates have signed a pledge to play nice with each other and respect taxpayers' money if elected — and have asked all other would-be trustees to do the same.

The candidates — Ausma Malik (Trinity-Spadina), Chris Moise (Toronto Centre-Rosedale), Marit Stiles (Davenport) and Jennifer Story (Toronto-Danforth) — agreed to a nine-point plan with promises to "post detailed expenses online," "always listen to and respect ideas that peer trustees have to offer" and "build bridges and do all I can to mend relationships among trustees, and between trustees and staff."

The "Putting Students First" pledge includes a call for Canada's largest school board to hire an ombudsman, an idea Toronto's Catholic board recently adopted — the first among Ontario school boards.

"We're not here to trash the TDSB — it runs some amazing programs — but the governance table is in a state of disarray and we want to set the bar higher and make sure everyone in the room behaves as adults," said Leslieville mother Jennifer Story, a former constituency assistant for late NDP leader Jack Layton.

Looking for change

"People are embarrassed and ashamed about what's happening at the board." Jennifer Story

TDSB trustees have been criticized this week for questions about their expenses, although the board did vote last Friday to post trustee expenses online, category by category, and they were posted Wednesday.

However, current trustees stopped short of agreeing to also have individual receipts made public. The four candidates who wrote the pledge also were not clear about their stand on posting receipts, although Malik noted she believed they all would be "open to that possibility."

Love science? You Should Know this duo

Stuff You Should Know. Hit podcasters hosting two sold-out shows in Toronto

Josh Clark and Chuck Bryant know so much stuff it's ridiculous. Which is not surprising, given that's their business as hosts of the smash hit podcast Stuff You Should Know.

The Atlanta duo has spent the last eight years demystifying everything from how the sun works to sinkholes, face transplants and why toothpaste makes orange juice taste bad. In the process, they've generated a loyal following around the globe that keeps them lodged in the top 10 on the iTunes podcast charts.

But there's one topic they aren't quite ready to tackle: hockey.

So even though they're hosting two sold-out shows in Toronto on Friday and the new NHL season is almost upon us, don't expect them to bring it up.

"No way," vows Bryant in an interview from their Atlanta office this week. Clark chimes in over the speaker phone: "We don't wanna create a melee."

Canuck love

The Toronto event is the first of its kind and will include live podcasting and interaction with the audience.

- Bryant calls the response from Canadian fans "mindbending" and can't say enough about us. Then again, Canada has been known to push Stuff You Should Know to first and second place on the podcast charts over the years.

Particle physics? Bring it on. Nuclear meltdowns, biohydrocarbons, zombies, intestinal parasites? Piece of cake.

Even if they botch the odd detail and end up correcting themselves on a later podcast — which they happily make a habit of doing — scientists are gentle when delivering constructive criticism.

But sports buffs, not so much, as they discovered after their podcast How Soccer Works during the World Cup.

"We learned that soccer fans are not the nicest people when it comes to pointing out mistakes," chuckles Bryant.

Man gets life for brutal murder of girlfriend

Warning: Graphic content. Natasha Perez was killed in apartment near Gerrard and the DVP in 2013

A Toronto man was sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for 14 years on Thursday for the brutal 2013 murder of his girlfriend and single mother Natasha Perez in his community housing apartment.

Brian Harte, 43, who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, showed no emotion as his sentence was read.

Justice John McMahon noted in his sentencing that Harte, high on crystal meth, called 911 early in the morning on April 6, 2013, to say he thought he'd killed someone. Asked if the victim was still breathing, Harte replied, "I don't think so and I really don't care."

Emergency personnel arrived at Harte's 24th-floor apartment at the Oak Street Housing Co-operative near Gerrard and the DVP shortly after 6 a.m. Perez, 28, was declared dead at the scene.

In court on Thursday, McMahon recounted the grisly murder. Perez had been living with Harte in his apartment for several weeks. They were sleeping together, and both were habitual drug users. Harte later claimed that he had been using crystal meth "for several days" at the time of the murder, McMahon said.

Believing that Perez had called authorities to report a sexual assault, Harte, fearing an imminent police visit to the apartment, flushed Perez's stash of the illegal drug GHB. When Perez learned what Harte had done, she began shouting; Harte then hit Perez twice in the head with a wooden baseball bat.

A third strike broke both Perez's left wrist and the bat. Gripping Perez's throat, Harte then dragged the still-conscious woman into his kitchen where he sawed into her neck with a steak knife.

Members of Perez's family appeared visibly shaken in the courtroom on Thursday morning. Outside, Perez's mother wept as she clutched a photo of her daughter.

"Justice has been served, but it doesn't make anything easier," Ana Alvarez said.

T.O. startup gives Uber competition for taxi app

Eddy Yao says he's helping small taxi companies fight a behemoth like Uber, which is shaking up the industry with its smartphone app, with an app of their own.

"Uber is placing a lot of pressure on incumbent fleets to innovate," said Yao, chief executive officer of Gata Labs, a Toronto startup that now has a dozen employees.

That's where the Toronto-based Gata Hub comes in — a free app available for both iOS and Android users, with BlackBerry and Microsoft users at a later date. The app has just launched this month, and two taxi companies are promoting it, Waterloo Taxi in Waterloo and Comfort Cab in Saskatoon, with about 100 bookings a day. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Best cities to live and work in Canada?

Waterloo, Calgary and Ottawa are considered the most attractive places to live and work in Canada, according to a survey by the Conference Board of Canada.

They're among the six cities that earned an overall "A" when ranked on such measures as education, environment, health, housing, innovation and society.

The other top performers are Richmond Hill, Vancouver and St. John's, though Edmonton came in ahead of St. John's among university-educated workers.

Toronto ranked 13th on the list of 50 cities, which puts it smack in the middle of the 14 cities that earned an overall "B" grade.

The report, called City Magnets, was released Thursday. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Scots decide their future

Independence. Historic day arrives as Scotland heads to the polls to vote on whether or not to break away from the United Kingdom

The decision

Results were expected early Friday morning — go to metronews.ca for the latest news and reaction.

Excitement vied with apprehension as Scottish voters went to the polls Thursday in a referendum on independence, deciding whether to dissolve a 307-year union with England that brought prosperity but has increasingly felt stifling to many Scots.

As the polls closed and the vote counting began, there was a quiet thrill of history in the making on the fog-shrouded streets of Scotland's capital, Edinburgh. Many Scots were staying up all night in homes and bars to watch the results roll in.

Eager voters had lined up outside some polling stations even before they opened at 7 a.m. Many polling stations were busy and turnout was expected to be high. More than 4.2 million people had registered to vote — 97 per cent of those eligible — including residents as young as 16.

A Yes vote would trigger 18 months of negotiations between Scottish leaders and London-based politicians on how the two countries would separate their institutions before Scotland's planned Independence Day on March 24, 2016. For some, it was a day they had dreamed of for decades. For others, the time had finally come to make up their minds about the future — both for themselves and for the United Kingdom.

Canadian Museum for Human Rights set to open in Winnipeg

This weekend.
Brainchild of Izzy Asper comes to light after years of fundraising and controversy

SHANE GIBSON
Metro in Winnipeg

After 14 years of work, Canada's first national museum outside of Ottawa — the Canadian Museum for Human Rights — is set to open in Winnipeg this weekend.

First envisioned by the late Winnipeg-based media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper in 2000, the 260,000-square-foot museum will open its doors to the public for the first time Saturday following an opening ceremony Friday.

"People have been working so hard, they're so passionate and I think we realize what we have here — we're a little like a kid before Christmas," said museum spokeswoman Angela Cassie this week about finally opening the museum. "After all this work, having people coming through and experiencing the exhibits is an amazing feeling for all of us."

The $351-million museum, which sits at the historic confluence of the Red and Assiniboine rivers at The Forks in Winnipeg, has 47,000-square-feet of exhibit space and interactive galleries delving into everything from the Holocaust and war atrocities to the high and low points of Canada's own human rights record.

The museum has been a lightning rod for controversy during its development, with several cultural groups complaining human rights violations they've suffered are either absent from the exhibits, or glazed over.

"For a human rights museum, that is to be expected," Cassie said of the complaints and protests expected for the opening weekend. "We will work together with organizations that have concerns, and allow that to update and inform how we update and renew our exhibits and public programming."

The public will be able to take guided tours of four of the museum's galleries this weekend, and all exhibits — including the building's iconic glass Tower of Hope — are set to open Sept. 27.

The museum is criss-crossed by several ramps leading to various galleries.

Timeline

A look at the long, sometimes bumpy road to the opening of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights:

July, 2000: Winnipeg media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper pitches to the federal government the idea of a "tolerance" museum in Winnipeg.

April, 2003: The Asper family, along with the federal, province and city, announce plans for a $200-million human rights museum. The feds' initial commitment is $30 million.

Oct. 7, 2003: Izzy Asper dies. His daughter Gail Asper becomes the driving force behind the museum project.

Jan., 2006: While donations pour in, The Asper Foundation puts up another $12 million for capital costs. Opening is pushed from 2008 to 2010.

Dec., 2008: The federal government essentially takes over. The price tag is now $265 million. The feds kick in $100 million, plus annual operating costs of $21 million.

July, 2009: Construction gets underway, but inflation and other factors drive up the projected cost to $310 million.

Nov., 2013: Exterior construction nears completion. An opening date of Sept. 19, 2014, is announced. The price tag has grown to $351 million.

Sept., 2014: Workers rush to finish the first four galleries in time for the grand opening. As of press deadline, it's unknown if they will finish on time.

Municipal Class Environmental Assessment
Notice of Completion

The City of Toronto has completed a Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (EA) as a component of the Eglinton Connects Planning Study. The study recommends a new street configuration on Eglinton Avenue between Black Creek Drive and Brentcliffe Road (just east of Laird Drive). This is the 10.5 km section where the Eglinton Crosstown Light Rail Transit line (LRT) will be underground. The following solutions are recommended:

- Removal of the majority of the existing reserved bus lanes, since most current bus passenger trips will be served by the LRT line.
- Four general traffic lanes for the majority of the corridor, and a reduction to two lanes and a continuous left turn lane on Eglinton Avenue from Avenue Road to Mount Pleasant Road.
- A protected bicycle lane of 1.2 m width plus 0.9 m buffer along the entire length of Eglinton in the EA study area.
- A 'main street' boulevard, where space is provided to grow large urban trees and wide sidewalks (typically 2.8 m up to 4.8 m width), particularly between Avenue Road and Mount Pleasant Road, to support pedestrian activity and space for patios and retail spill-out.
- Preserving on-street, off-peak parking for the majority of the corridor and 24-hour lay-by parking between Avenue Road and Mount Pleasant Road, while augmenting public parking supply as new development occurs.
- Pedestrian and cycling connections from the LRT station areas to trails and open spaces.

Opportunities for Review
The study was carried out following the requirements for Schedule C projects under the Municipal Class EA. An Environmental Study Report has been completed and has been placed on public record for a 30-day review period starting September 17, 2014 and ending October 17, 2014. You may also know that collagen production slows by 1% per year after the age of 21. Can you gain it back? Yes. But not by eating collagen. You see, collagen is a protein. When you ingest it, your body breaks it down, like any other protein, and uses it as food. When you want the real beauty benefits of collagen, you have to generate it.

BioSil™ generates collagen by activating the collagen producing cells in your body known as fibroblasts. It is clinically proven to increase collagen formation. In fact, in the clinical trial the women taking BioSil™ reduced wrinkles by 30%, increased skin elasticity by 89% and thickened and strengthened their hair by 13% compared to women not taking BioSil™. Native women easier prey: Study

Rally for murdered and missing aboriginal women on Parliament Hill last year. FRED CHARTRAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Public Safety Canada study. Aboriginal women and girls are more likely to become victims of human traffickers

Aboriginal women and girls are easy prey for human traffickers because they are more likely to suffer from poverty, drug addictions and mental-health problems, says a newly disclosed report.

The Public Safety Canada study sheds new light on how women and girls are forced into the sex trade by pimps acting as boyfriends, small, loosely defined gangs and even members of their own families.

The previously unreleased research is bound to add fuel to the fire raging in Canada over the Conservative government's refusal to hold a national inquiry into murdered and missing aboriginal women and girls.

Many people who took part in the study said human trafficking and murdered and missing women and girls are just symptoms of a much larger problem.

"A number of participants believed that the trafficking of aboriginal women and girls was part of a wider 'Canadian crisis,'" says the May 2014 report, obtained under the Access to Information Act.

"This crisis was a continuum of related phenomena involving the criminal victimization of aboriginal women and girls," it says, "evident by the large numbers of aboriginal women and girls who are subjected to physical and sexual violence, are trafficked, and who go missing or are murdered." Last month, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the issue was a crime problem, not a "sociological phenomenon."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Apathy

"What's happened to aboriginal people in this country is reflected in the murdered and missing women."

Yvonne Boyer, research chair in aboriginal health, Manitoba's Brandon University

Just a 'crime problem'?

Among the other findings in the Public Safety report:

- Family members, gangs and friends can recruit women through financial and psychological coercion and violence.
- Small gangs, not highly sophisticated organizations, are behind most of the trafficking of aboriginal women.

Rapist charged with urging his victim to kill herself

A man in prison for raping a girl starting when she was 12 is now charged with trying to persuade her to kill herself by cutting her wrists and taking prescription medication while he watched on a webcam.

Michael John Morlan, 21, was out on bail on the rape charges when he spoke with the then-15-year-old girl via Skype last September and told her to commit suicide while he watched.

The girl told investigators that when she started crying, Morlan told her to stop wasting air and get it over with. The teen said Morlan repeatedly told her to kill herself. When she started cutting her wrists, he told her to cut deeper and then told her to take a handful of antidepressants, court records said.

She took the pills then panicked, disconnected the call and went to her parents. Morlan is serving a seven-year prison sentence for raping the girl. He is scheduled to be arraigned Monday on new charges including aiding or soliciting suicide.

Sea ice postpones exploration of Franklin wreck

Taking it slowly.
Archeologists won't say if they think the vessel is HMS Erebus or HMS Terror

The long-lost Franklin wreck has so many stories to tell after some 160 years on the bottom that even seasoned underwater archeologists have trouble taking it all in.

The divers got their second close look Thursday, their last until next year at a site so rich in information and relics that they're calling it an archeologists' dream.

"This is going to rank as one of the biggest discoveries and studies in the field of underwater archeology," said Marc-Andre Bernier, a 25-year veteran of diving on shipwrecks. He heads the Parks Canada team.

The archeologists want to methodically tease all the information they can from the vessel before offering answers to a myriad of questions.

One of the biggest is why Sir John Franklin and his 128 men all perished. Northern explorers before and after them suffered losses, but there were always survivors.

"Without a doubt, that is the most extraordinary shipwreck I have ever seen in my life," beamed senior underwater archeologist Ryan Harris, 42, who has explored more than 100 shipwrecks.

The wreck is about 11 metres underwater, near a remote island in eastern Queen Maud Gulf.

It's so pristine after so long underwater that the divers could see the wood grain. The vessel is upright, its three masts sheared off by ice. Her hulking form rises around five metres from the bottom.

Harris calls the archeological potential of the wreck site staggering and predicts it will take several years to carefully explore it. The team hopes they'll be looking for the second Franklin wreck at the same time.

As sea ice closed in Thursday, the underwater archeologists called off the exploration for this year and headed for land. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Bones found near Red River are from an animal: Police

Winnipeg police say bones found by volunteers searching the Red River are not human.

Police said on Twitter that a forensic analysis by pathologists has confirmed the bones are from an animal.

Volunteers searching the banks of the Red River came across the bones earlier this week.

The group is combing the shoreline and dragging the bottom of the river, searching for clues about the fate of missing and murdered aboriginal women.

A blood-splattered pillowcase, a bloody rug and a set of dentures have also been turned over to police.

New video the first of three

The Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) released a video Thursday showing a British journalist who says he is a prisoner of the extremists. In a slick three-minute video shot with three cameras, John Cantlie, a photojournalist, said he worked for publications including The Sunday Times, The Sun and The Sunday Telegraph and came to Syria in November 2012 where he was subsequently captured by ISIS.

The group has beheaded two U.S. journalists — James Foley and Steven Sotloff — and a British aid worker named David Haines.

Gilchrist County Sheriff Robert Schultz at a news conference identified the man as 51-year-old Don Spirit. He says the children ranged in age from 3 months to 10-years-old.

Schultz says a deputy who arrived on a report of a shooting Thursday made contact with Spirit who later committed suicide.

Police stop beheading plot, detain 15 suspects

ISIS in Australia. Supporters of the Islamic militant group alleged to be behind plot to kill Aussie Prime Minister

Australian police thwarted a plot to carry out beheadings on Thursday that were to be conducted by local supporters of Islamic militants.

Officials said police raided over a dozen properties across Sydney and were holding six people, one they have identified as the suspected ringleader. Nine others were detained and freed before the day was over.

The raid involved 800 federal and state officers — the largest in Australian history — and came in response to intelligence that the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) leaders were calling on Australian supporters to kill Prime Minister Tony Abbott.

Abbott was asked about reports that the detainees were planning to behead a random person in Sydney.

"That's the intelligence we received," he told reporters, noting the threats came from a senior ISIS member in Australia.

ISIS refers to the al-Qaida splinter group leading Sunni militants in Iraq and Syria.

Australia estimates about 60 citizens are fighting alongside the ISIS and Nusra Front groups in Iraq and Syria, while it additionally believes at least 100 Australians actively support extremist groups from within the country in capacities inclusive of training and recruitment. Fahim Ali, left, and Amyn Jagshi are two of three men behind Isis, a jewelry shop in Calgary that they say is being routinely connected to an Islamic extremist group with the same name. CANDICE WARD/FOR METRO

Store named Isis may change name

Zero connection.
Calgary shop owners say they are enduring endless questions about whether their store, Isis, is connected to ISIS

Three years ago, Amyn Jagshi and his business partners settled on the name Isis for their jewelry shop in Calgary's Northland Village Mall in hopes of evoking an exotic vibe.

Now, he claims he's being asked four to five times a day about potential connections to Islamic radicals.

"We have people come in and act like they've just solved a big mystery, like we are the ones behind these guys," Jagshi said referring to the group, known both as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS).

Jagshi suspects some of the association may be tied to media reports of at least four former Calgary residents who headed overseas to fight with the group in recent years.

"People don't know what they're talking about," he said. "There might be somebody doing that (funding the extremist group), but they wouldn't put the name ISIS on their front door."

Isis is also the name of an Egyptian goddess, but lately the term has been prevalent in news headlines as the radical group has claimed to have beheaded two American journalists and a British aid worker. Meanwhile U.S. President Barack Obama has gone public with a plan to train Syrian rebels to fight ISIS members.

Jagshi said he's considering changing the name after the Christmas busy season. In the meantime, he may put up a sign clarifying that the profits he's making from necklaces and earrings are not being funnelled to the extremist group. Trend of charging flyers a bevy of ancillary fees soars

Air Canada, as expected, is joining rival WestJet Airlines in charging passengers a fee to check their first bag on domestic flights as the two airlines also finalize plans to introduce other ancillary fees in a move to boost revenue.

The new fee being charged by Air Canada applies to passengers booking the airline's lowest economy class Tango fares as of Thursday for flights beginning Nov. 2. It applies to flights within Canada and to the Caribbean and Mexico.

The Montreal-based airline has charged for a traveller's first checked bag on U.S. routes since 2011. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Transparency report'. Telus got 103,500 requests for customers' info in 2013

Telus Corp.'s first "transparency" report reveals that the Vancouver-based telecom company received about 103,500 official requests for information about its customers last year.

A majority of the requests — nearly 56,800 — were in emergency situations, such as to verify the location of 911 callers and another 40,900 requests were for names and addresses that are publicly available through directories.

Telus also received about 4,300 court-ordered requests in 2013, mostly as part of domestic police investigations, but also two foreign requests made under Canada's treaty obligations.

It also received 154 other requests as part of police investigations into suspected Internet child exploitation, without court orders — but the company says it no longer will provide such information in most cases without a court order.

Telus executive vice-president Eros Spadotto says the company is trying to strike a balance between fulfilling its responsibilities under the law and concern for its customers' privacy.

"You don't have to look very far to know that this has become one of the key areas with clients all over the world, no matter what service provider they have, in terms of trying to understand how their information is being used," Spadotto said in an interview ahead of the report's release. GREAT SCOTS! WHAT A WEEK IT'S BEEN

It's time for the Metro List, your surefire guide to the hottest stories of the week.

THE LIST

Paul Sullivan
vancouver@metronews.ca

1 Scotland the Brave. By the time you read this, lassies and laddies, you'll know if Scotland has chosen to go it alone. It will require a wee dram of courage because even the Bank of Scotland says it will move to London if the Yes side wins.

2 Rob Ford vs. Liposarcoma. His Worship the Mayor of Toronto goes mano a mano with a rare and aggressive form of cancer featuring a tumour that's bigger than a baseball. I don't know about you, but I'm not going to bet against Rob Ford, whatever he's up against.

3 Time to Lose the Baggage. After this week, more and more Canadians will be travelling light, as first WestJet and then Air Canada add a $25 baggage handling charge for checked bags in economy class. How long before they start charging you for that 50-pound suitcase you're trying to stuff in the overhead?

4 Fly Me to the Moon. Well, not quite, but NASA has commissioned Boeing and SpaceX to be the first private companies to transport humans in space. The first destination will be ISS, the International Space Station, sometime in 2017. The good news: NASA will no longer have to pay the Russians $71 million per flight. But you have to wonder how much Boeing will charge for checked baggage.

5 Worm in the Apple? Apple CEO Tim Cook puts his cool clothes on and unveils a fall crop of devices, including an iWatch that's even better than Superman's wrist communicator. The problem is that on every front, Android was there first. Stay tuned for more smug commercials that take a bite out of Apple.

6 Gridiron Violence, Si! Domestic Violence, No! The NFL is learning a hard lesson this week. When you encourage young men to beat the crap out of each other for millions of dollars, you shouldn't be surprised when some of them take their work home. Somehow, it has come as a collective shock to the system that it's not OK to knock your wife out or beat your little boy until he's bloody. Are you ready for some football, or is it enough, already?

7 War on Terror 2.0. Meanwhile, there's a war going on. I think. U.S. president Barack Obama has kinda declared war on ISIS, the latest nasty terrorist nightmare. But it's hardly shock and awe. More like this and that. The U.S. will train Arab armies to fight on the ground, while sending in airstrikes. The object seems to be to make an omelette without breaking any American eggs. Good luck with that.

The War on Bees?

RCMP investigate report that thousands of bees may have been poisoned

RCMP in Brandon, Man., are investigating a report that thousands of honey bees have been poisoned in the region recently.

Mounties say in a news release that two locations northwest of Brandon in the rural municipality of Elton are involved. They allege that poisonings are believed to have happened between Aug. 14 and Sept. 3. Mounties say the bee producers have suffered a substantial financial loss.

Dwindling bee populations have been an increasing concern in the agricultural community, though generally not because of any criminal action. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tough times

In recent years, bee populations worldwide have been ravaged by pesticides, parasites and Colony Collapse Disorder, a mysterious phenomenon in which worker bees suddenly disappear.

- California. A record drought has reduced honey supplies, raising prices and making it harder for beekeepers to earn a living.
- Ontario. A proposed class-action lawsuit has been launched against two chemical companies that make pesticides widely blamed for massive bee deaths.

You will have peace of mind with three years of positive cash flow, plus you are building equity through mortgage payments. In a robust market like Toronto, your asset could well appreciate over the same three-year period.

LOCATION SECOND TO NONE

Right on the Yonge subway line and steps from the new Eglinton LRT, 2221 Yonge has a location second to none in the city: at the junction of Toronto's main north-south and east-west arteries. Downtown, uptown, cross-town — this is where all transit routes converge, giving unparalleled access and convenience to all parts of the city.

With floor-to-ceiling glass walls, the elegant lobby lounge, accessed from the main entrance on Yonge, is a visually transparent pavilion with a steeped Zen garden.

INSPIRING AMENITIES

The centrepiece of the amenities areas is the seventh floor glass-walled lounge overlooking a large terrace that faces Yonge Street. This indoor/outdoor space offers residents a variety of entertaining choices with casual seating, barbecues, and great views of the neighbourhood. The building's lower level has a luxurious spa with cascading water, and a holistic, inspiring ambience. It's the perfect venue for residents and their guests to kick back, relax and enjoy summer in the city.

LIVE THE GLAMOROUS LIFE AT TORONTO'S MOST ICONIC ADDRESS

Exciting new tower at The Residences of 488 University Avenue

Every great city has an iconic grand avenue. In New York, it's Park Avenue. In Paris, it's Avenue des Champs-Élyseés. In Toronto, it's undeniably University Avenue.

Not only is it the city's most celebrated avenue with majestic Queen's Park serving as its backdrop vista, it is at the heart of everything that makes Toronto unique. It's where world-class arts and culture, fine dining and designer shopping rub shoulders with leading-edge science and technology, education and business.

For well over a century, University Avenue has been considered Toronto's grandest avenue: Toronto's historic epicentre, leading up to Queen's Park. But over the past decade, the face of University Avenue and its environs has been transforming.

First came the opening of the Four Seasons Centre for the Performing Arts, followed by the stunning Frank Gehry renovation of the nearby Art Gallery of Ontario. Then came the opening of the 65-storey five-star Shangri-La Hotel and other prestigious residential developments in the immediate area. Countless new chef-driven restaurants and designer boutiques followed, as well as the opening of the London-based Soho House private members' club and the cutting-edge MaRS Discovery District. Overlooking it all is the grandeur of Queen's Park with its imposing Romanesque edifice and invitingly shaded public park.

University Avenue is hot and it's about to get hotter.

Soon, the northwest corner of University Avenue and Dundas Street will undergo a breathtaking metamorphosis with a 55-storey sculpture of glittering glass and steel anchored by a spectacular street-level podium with a soaring 50-foot atrium. It will feature sophisticated retail, a signature restaurant, and a grand residential lobby with elevators to whisk you aloft to your urban oasis in the sky.

The Residences of 488 University Avenue will offer mesmerizing vistas, stylish and refined interior design and a package of lifestyle amenities unsurpassed in the downtown core. There will be attentive 24-hour concierge services and valet parking, a 30,000-sq.-ft. fitness centre and luxurious resort-style spa with indoor and outdoor saltwater pools, a squash court, yoga and pilates studios, screening room, sun deck and terrace, plus SkyBar, where you can enjoy the ultimate social experience without ever having to leave home.

But when you do venture forth, you'll be close to everywhere you want to be and everything you want to do, close to chic boutiques and cultural venues, fine dining and trendy coffee shops, the financial district, entertainment district, the waterfront, and treed parks. You will also have direct indoor access to the St. Patrick's TTC subway station, making it quick and easy to get to work, the opera, ballet, galleries and festivals.

The Presentation Gallery located at 393 University Avenue is now open, for more information visit 488university.com

All living spaces feature sleek, modern kitchens with designer custom cabinetry, granite, marble or quartz slab countertops, stainless-steel appliances, spa-inspired ensuites, as well as automated systems to control temperature, lighting, music, television and multimedia devices from built-in touch screens, smartphones or tablets.

The Residences of 488 University Avenue will incorporate numerous environmental initiatives like thermally insulated Low E (low-emission) windows and remote programmable thermostats. Solar panels on the roof will reduce energy costs, and there will be ample parking for bicycles, electric car charging stations, and a car-sharing service with dedicated parking spaces on-site.

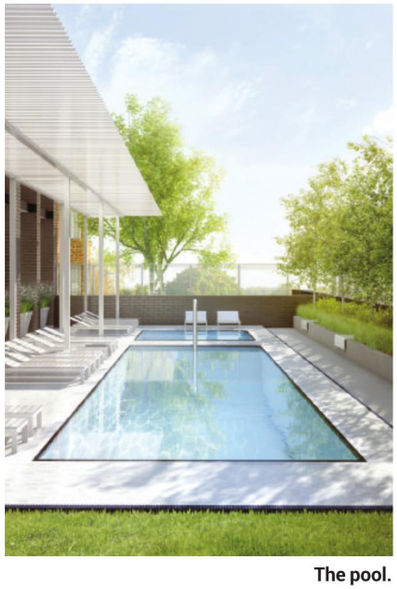
INNOVATIVE DESIGN COMES TO TORONTO

The Selby condominiums to transform skyline at Bloor and Sherbourne Streets

Rising 49 storeys, the Selby condominiums will tower over one of Toronto's most dynamic and transformative neighbourhoods. The condominium will include a unique variety of suites including a limited number of contemporary townhomes located just steps from Bloor Street East and Sherbourne Street.

Three of Toronto's foremost developers known for thought-provoking, high-quality architecture and design — Cityzen, Diamond Corp., and Fernbrook Homes — have joined forces for the Selby. "The Selby will create this vision of a red pillar in the sky and join our portfolio of architecturally stunning buildings, such as the Absolute World towers, L Tower and Pier 27," says Sam Crignano, president of Cityzen. "Not only will The Selby create a stunning architectural statement from the street, but owners will have incredible and unimpeded views in most directions, something that's becoming hard to come by in downtown Toronto."



The pool.

In addition to an exceptional view, The Selby will give residents an enviable location in downtown Toronto. Located just steps from the Sherbourne subway station, at 592 Sherbourne St., the Selby offers quick access anywhere downtown via the Bloor line. To the north is the Rosedale neighbourhood with premium food shops, upscale restaurants and design stores. The forested Rosedale Ravine Trail is a treasure in the middle of the busy city perfect for hiking, walking and cycling. To the west lies Yorkville, with gourmet restaurants, trendy bars, designer shopping and luxurious spas. The legendary, high-energy Yonge Street with its assortment of endless shopping, multicultural restaurants and cool bars are just west. For those who love theatre and culture, the Toronto Reference Library, ROM, Panasonic Theatre, Ed Mirvish Theatre and the Elgin and Winter Garden Theatre are all close by. The dynamic Danforth Avenue is close by with a host of restaurants featuring cuisine from the four corners of the world. The Selby is also located close to the University of Toronto, Ryerson University, George Brown College, and the many hospitals in downtown Toronto, including Mount Sinai Hospital, Toronto General Hospital, St. Michael's Hospital and Women's College Hospital.

The Selby Condominiums rise 49 storeys.

Cityzen, Diamond Corp., and Fernbrook Homes have amassed a team of international and Canadian design and architecture talent for the Selby. It was designed by architect Thomas Kerwin of Chicago-based and internationally recognized bKL Architecture. Kerwin's designs span the globe, and he was the co-ordinating architect of Chicago's 2016 Olympic bid. Kerwin's previous Toronto projects include the expansion of the Direct Energy Centre, and the first tower of Cityzen's Garrison Point master-planned community.

While designing The Selby, Kerwin looked to colour and materials to distinguish the project architecturally and make the condominium stand out, while taking elegance and modernity into consideration. The Selby will feature a four-level podium and be set back from Sherbourne Street, offering privacy for residents.

Integrated into The Selby is the existing 130-year-old heritage building, the Gooderham Mansion (currently the Clarion Hotel). First a private home for the Gooderham family, the mansion was transformed into an exclusive girls' school and later became a residential hotel that once housed writer Ernest Hemingway. bKL Architecture has been working closely with ERA Architects, which specializes in building conservation and adaptive reuse of heritage buildings.

The Selby landscape architect is Claude Cormier of Claude Cormier + Associes, based out of Montreal, which has an impressive international and local portfolio including L Tower, Garrison Point, The Evergreen Brick Works, Four Seasons Hotel and Residences, and the ROM in Toronto, as well as Square Dorchester Place du Canada in Montreal, Pergola in Le Havre, France, and Blue Tree in Sonoma, Calif.

Interiors are designed by Johnson Chou of Johnson Chou Inc., which is an internationally recognized interdisciplinary design practice that seamlessly brings together architecture and interiors, furniture, industrial and graphic design. Chou has worked on award-winning projects including 10 Bellair, Candy Factory condominiums, Sixty Colborne and the Museum of Canadian Contemporary Art.

The Maze Runner. Characters spend more time talking about the forbidden labyrinth than actually seeking their way around it

Richard: Mark, the story in The Maze Runner is based on a dare. When Thomas is dropped into a mysterious walled world where a society of boys have grown up in the shadow of a giant labyrinth, he is told, "Don't go in the maze."

Of course he does, because that's like telling a teen, "Don't go through that door," in a horror flick. Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books — so yes, you can look forward to The Maze Runner 2: Electric Boogaloo coming soon to a theatre near you — and the immediacy of the story serves it well ... to a point.

It's a good set-up that turns into a becomes a standard 3D sci-fi chase flick.

What did you think?

Mark: Richard, it was dull, dull, dull, interrupted by the occasional exciting scene but it played like a dumbed-down version of Lost for paranoid teens.

Yes, the set-up is good, but so little time is actually spent in the maze, and there's too much time talking about it.

The dialogue is mostly exposition, the acting is functional at best, and although it's cut from the same cloth as The Hunger Games, it doesn't have any of its bite.

It's no spoiler alert to reveal that some will survive, and the big reveal is laughable in the way it shills for the inevitable sequel.

RC: I liked it way more than you. I liked that the characters are cyphers with no knowledge of their pasts, so they have to create personas based on their abilities in the camp.

That way, unlike most original stores, we don't have to spend much time getting to know the characters, where they came from, or what their inner torment is.

They don't know and neither do we.

Instead they concentrate on the present — their present — and survival. Imagine if the reality show Survivor was set in a world surrounded by an impenetrable maze and the only way to get voted off the island was to be eaten by a giant, mechanical Griever beast.

MB: Actually, that's a pretty good description of Survivor. Mazes intrigue me, and so do mad scientists. You'd think the combination would work here, but it just didn't for me. I preferred Cube and even the much-maligned The Village as riffs on the same topic.

Of course, you could see the movie as a metaphor for a cruel deity's continuous test of the human race, but... naaaaah. And I really wanted a more shocking ending.

RC: I think there will be more thrills should the next part of the series ever get made.

The first movie is just the foreplay.

MB: Foreplay perhaps, but with cold fingers and bad breath.

Synopsis

Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books, The Maze Runner sees Thomas, played by Teen Wolf's Dylan O'Brien, plopped into a community of young men surrounded by a labyrinth. The rebellious Thomas wants to see if there is a way to navigate through the ever-changing maze that stands between the boys and whatever is happening in the outside world. When a girl, played by Kaya Scodelario, arrives with a note clutched in her hand, ("She is the last one,") it seems like the time has come to take on the maze and hopefully avoid being eaten by its evil guardians, the Grievers.

Coming of age a little bit later in life

My Old Lady.
Kevin Kline plays a man forced to confront his demons after his estranged father dies and leaves him an interesting situation

STEVE GOW
scene@metronews.ca

When Kevin Kline agreed to play the lead role in playwright-turned-director Israel Horovitz's My Old Lady — the 66-year-old star had a curious motivation to accept the part.

"As one ages, there are fewer and fewer roles where you get the girl," said Kline during a recent interview at the Toronto International Film Festival.

"Usually you're the old professor or the father (and) your son gets the girl and I have to give him my blessing and I get to die."

A witty light comedy, My Old Lady casts cordial Kline as a contemptuous American who gets a surprise when the Parisian apartment his estranged father willed to him comes with a string — namely a longtime, nonagenarian tenant (Maggie Smith) who has no intention of leaving.

"I just hadn't read anything like it and I thought there was something very true in the character," explained Kline whose most frequent films, include Last Vegas and No Strings Attached.

"All the characters were people that one could recognize — they weren't superheroes or super anything."

In fact, Kline (who is famously known as "Kevin DeKline" for his reluctance in choosing films) was drawn more to the character's depth and the simple psychological ties to his past. As he attempts to eject his retired renter, he begins to learn more about his estranged father and must face his conflicted childhood.

"It's about quite a bit more than just damaged people," said Kline.

"(Director) Israel (Horovitz) has taken this failure and placed him in this alien place where he's got to find himself as we all do when we're put in some foreign locale.

"He's also trying to find his footing in life and his father seems to have thrown a real curveball at him … so there's a lot going on — it's kind of a coming-of-age movie, it's about childhood and really growing up."

Love keeps him going

- Kevin Kline on his longevity in Hollywood. "I don't live in Hollywood. I attribute it all to my wife, who is great," said Kline, referring to spouse Phoebe Cates of Fast Times at Ridgemont High fame. "Great — such an underused word."

Pondering the pursuit of happiness

Simon Pegg. Actor's latest role has him reflecting on cynicism, psychiatry and the malaise of modern Western civilization

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Simon Pegg goes all out in Hector and the Search for Happiness as the titular psychiatrist stymied by modern life who embarks on a globe-trotting trip to get in touch with his inner child.

To hear Pegg tell it, how you respond to the film says a lot about you.

I totally fell for this film, but then I'm a total sap.
Well, one person's sap is another person's ... emotionally open person. There's nothing wrong with giving yourself over to something. It's easy to be cynical and dismiss something that's arguably sentimental as being frivolous, but I don't think that's true. I think the message of this film is a little bit more sophisticated than just schmaltz. It's about getting in touch with a childlike wonder and accessing your own happiness through that.

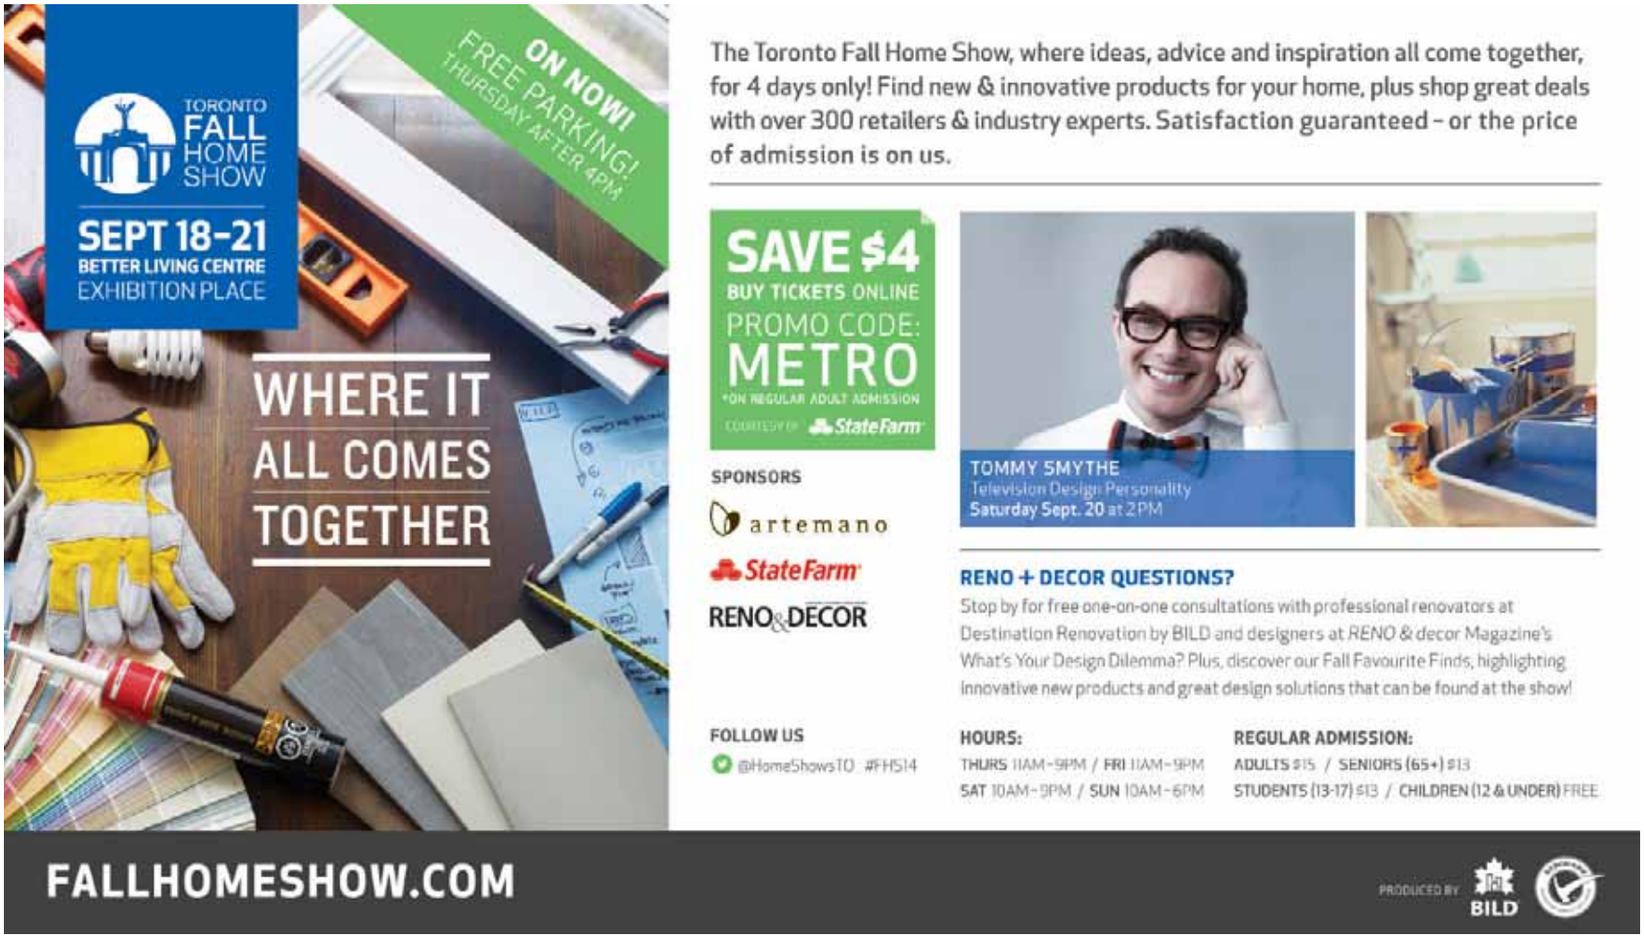
I found a lot of the British critics were like, "Oh no, this is terribly ... no, thank you."

That's the British critic accent?
It is! "Oh no, we don't like this. Too, too, too rough, too emotional." I get why, but if you're fundamentally unhappy, this film will shine quite a bright light on that, whereas if you have a capacity to be happy you'll come out of it going, "Yeah, man!"

At one point Hector gets very down on his profession of psychiatry because many of his patients treat it as a luxury item, but that's not the whole of that field.
I totally agree that in psychiatry you can help people to address issues that they have that might damage their lives, but at the same time when you don't have to worry about survival, when you don't have to worry about finding your next meal or living through the night, you have time to start thinking about stuff like that, and that's when you start questioning your happiness. There is a certain numbness to modern living for us in affluent society where we have so much choice and we're so looked after, pandered to, offered so much stuff that's supposed to make us happy that we completely lose sight of what it means. Whereas if you spent yesterday avoiding being shot and you know that today you're not going to get shot, your happiness would be so much more real and identifiable and easier to understand. That's not advocating not getting shot as being a way of being happy, mind you.

Simon Pegg stars in Hector and the Search for Happiness, which opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

I don't know, I could recommend not getting shot as a way to be happy.
I could certainly recommend that just purely as a survival method.



Dan Stevens and his twisted sense of humour

The Guest. Actor jumped at the chance to star in a thriller

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Dan Stevens wanted a change and he certainly got one. After quickly developing a devoted fan base as Matthew Crawley on Downton Abbey, the 32-year-old actor was eager to shake things up. This week finds him as a vet with a deadly secret in The Guest and a troubled drug kingpin alongside Liam Neeson in A Walk Among the Tombstones. So ... pretty different.

I saw this film yesterday and ... holy crap.
That's a great response. I hope that's a good "holy crap."

How on earth was this movie pitched to you?
The funny thing was, it was never really pitched. I'd tried to sort of put the word out there that I was looking for something different, and I got sent this script. I'd recently seen You're Next, and I just really wanted to meet the crazy guys who'd made that film. When I sat down with (director) Adam (Wingard) it was very quickly established that we had the same twisted kind of sense of humour, but also the same desire to entertain. And as soon as we realized that we both really passionately loved the movie Big Trouble in Little China, we knew we were off to a good start.

A classic, to be sure.
One of the many things we like about that film, particularly for me as an actor, is just that the amount of fun that Kurt Russell looks like he's having is kind of infectious as a performer. I think we were looking to capture some of that passion and enthusiasm. Growing up in England, we were steeped in American action thrillers and horror movies, and it's a kind of film that they don't really make in England. There's kind of a nod to it in Simon Pegg and Nick Frost's film Hot Fuzz, where they acknowledge that as Brit fanboys, we don't get to make those kinds of movies.

Something happened in the last 10 years or so where everyone decided action movies had to be serious.
Right. It's interesting to watch these cinematic shifts in terms of how we approach things like violence. But there's very much a kind of tongue-in-cheek attitude to The Guest. And something I was keen to explore is how you inject character and humour into an action film, something that always used to happen in '80s and '90s action thrillers. And I kind of missed that.

More than 'Batman without Batman'

Gotham. Inhabiting Batman's universe is a kick for series star Ben McKenzie — even if he won't grow up to be Gary Oldman

A one-sentence summary of the gloomy new comic book-based series Gotham doubles as its chief criticism: It's Batman without Batman.

Star Ben McKenzie knows this. He's the show's fulcrum, portraying a young Commissioner Jim Gordon when he's still just a detective paddling in seeming futility against a tide of crime and corruption. The show kicks off with Bruce Wayne still a child, about to endure the formative horror of seeing his parents murdered in front of him.

When the show was first announced, Simpsons writer Mike Scully tidily summed up the skepticism of many onlookers when he tweeted: "Can't wait to see Gotham to learn how Officer Gordon became Commissioner Gordon. Hoping for lots of test-taking and waiting for scores."

McKenzie was actually among the 600-plus who retweeted the quip, and — as he journeyed to Canada in the spring to promote the show — his eyes lit up when reminded of it. But of course, he disagrees.

"I understand the reflex of 'Batman show without Batman,'" said the chatty Texan, best-known for starring roles on The O.C. and Southland.

"But I think there's so many people who are really, really fans of the entire universe that surrounds Batman. I mean, do you go to the movies and see the (Christopher) Nolan versions only for Christian Bale's performance as Batman? No, of course not. You go to see all of these other characters, right?

"I understand the criticism," he continued, "but my short answer is, just watch it. If you don't like it, don't keep watching it, but I'm really proud of the pilot we've made ... I think people who are fans of this are, for the most part, going to lose their minds."

For those devotees of the 75-year-old DC Comics franchise, McKenzie promises that Gotham will showcase the rogues' gallery of freaks Batman eventually goes on to fight, in variously fledgling states of villainy.

We'll learn more about Wayne, too. And McKenzie's vision for the show's eventual end would see a finally grown Wayne slip on the cape and cowl for the first time.

"(That's) hopefully a long time from now," said McKenzie, rapping his knuckles on the wooden table to keep his karma straight.

He's confident about the show's fortunes, and he's not alone. Given the show's blockbuster ties, it was earmarked early as a possible fall breakout.

Of course, Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. failed to completely ignite despite similarly lucrative associations. But that show featured a cast of characters almost totally new to viewers, whereas McKenzie stresses the familiarity of the Gotham universe.

Well, to most people. The 35-year-old actor, a University of Virginia graduate and nephew to Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Robert Schenkkan, notes with bemused wonder that he was given focus-group data in which a third of those polled hadn't heard of Batman.

"Lord knows where they pull these people from," he marvelled. "That can't possibly be. Now that I'm a part of it, I walk around, you go to the mall, you see people in Batman shirts, just walking around.

"It's just entered the lexicon. It's entered the never-ending zeitgeist."

Gotham isn't McKenzie's first entry point into the Batman universe. He actually voiced the avenging orphan in the animated film Batman: Year One, which also showcased the talents of Bryan Cranston — who just won a Tony Award for his performance in All the Way, a play, McKenzie points out, written by his uncle.

Growing up, McKenzie and his brother used to watch the arch, richly cheesy Adam West-starred '60s Batman every afternoon. And he loves Nolan's bleak, coffee-black cinematic take, in which intense Oscar nominee Gary Oldman inhabited the role of the noble police chief.

"Someone tweeted me that it's so cool you'll grow up and be Gary Oldman," McKenzie recalled. "I was like, 'Sadly, I don't think that's how it works.'"

An unlikely duet, a fuzzy Brit pop tune and tennis-inspired techno

You and Me/ You+Me

Wait: The ex-guitarist from Alexisonfire has teamed up with Pink? Yep. Meet Dallas Green and Alecia "Pink" Moore as You+Me. A 10-track album entitled Rose Ave. is coming next month. I've heard it and it's gorgeous.

Somedays/ Tess Parks

Parks' Blood Hot album was released 10 months ago, so I'm a little late to this Toronto singer's party. She's signed to Alan McGee's management company. Yes, the same guy who discovered Oasis. Best pay attention, yeah?

Match 104/ James Murphy Remix

Remember that story on how James Murphy and IBM worked together to create music from data captured during the U.S. Open Tennis Tournament? Well, the algorithm has finished its work and the result is 400 hours of hypnotic tennis music.

Video game review

Name. Destiny

For. Xbox 360/PS3/Xbox One/PS4

Rated. Teen

Destiny merges its story with its multiplayer to awkward effect. You replay the same maps where enemies re-spawn while others play their game around you. Even with Peter Dinklage (Game of Thrones) voicing your AI companion, there's little sense of adventure where your actions have consequences. The encouragement is to create your own fun with others online, and the slick interplay of guns, swords, and hoverbikes makes that worthwhile. It's fun to grind against demon-robot monsters, but it feels disconnected following Bungie's emotional, character-driven series, Halo. KRIS ABEL

Kendall gets the butt-out-of-our-biz treatment from other NYFW models

Apparently there's even hazing in the fashion world, as Kendall Jenner reportedly learned during her New York Fashion Week debut earlier this month. "The other models worked so hard to get a spot on the runway and didn't think it was fair that she was there. They thought she was getting special treatment and just weren't OK with it," a source tells In Touch, adding that some of the other models "even put out their cigarettes in Kendall's drink. Models can be cruel, especially with someone new and entitled."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Is Avril's year-old marriage coming to a Chad end?

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Say it ain't so! After recently celebrating a year of wedded bliss — and showing off a gaudy 17-carat diamond ring to mark the occasion, Avril Lavigne and Nickelback frontman Chad Kroeger are reportedly packing it in, according to Us Weekly. "It's over. He has been going around L.A. telling people that they are divorcing," a source says.

I'm not really one to judge, but I can't believe it took her this long to realize he was in Nickelback. I guess sparkly diamonds can only distract a person from the awful truth for so long.

Connor Cruise

Connor Cruise giving up Scientology, searches for the sacred in Morocco

The Church of Scientology might be down another high-profile member, as Connor Cruise — the 19-year-old aspiring DJ and son of Tom Cruise and Nicole Kidman — is reportedly distancing himself from the controversial organization and has embarked on something of a spiritual quest. "Connor is no longer as interested in being a member of Scientology," a source tells Radar Online. "Connor is in Morocco right now doing some soul-searching. He is on a spiritual journey."

Ingredients

Lasagna
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) butter
- 1 lb (454 g) skinless and boneless chicken thighs
- 2 cloves of garlic, finely chopped
- Salt and pepper
- 1 lb (454 g) mushrooms, sliced
- 3 oz (85 g) thinly sliced pancetta, chopped
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) white wine
- 1 can (28 oz/796 ml) diced tomatoes
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped parsley
- 9 lasagna noodles, cooked al dente
- 2 cups (500 ml) grated mozzarella cheese

Parmesan Béchamel Sauce
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) butter
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 cups (375 ml) milk
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) ground nutmeg

Lasagna

1. In large non-stick skillet, brown onion in butter. Add chicken and garlic and cook over high heat until chicken is golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside in a bowl.

2. In same skillet, brown mushrooms and pancetta. Add butter, if needed. Season with salt and pepper. Deglaze with the wine. Add the chicken mixture and tomatoes. Bring to a boil.

3. Cover and simmer for about 20 minutes or until chicken is cooked. Shred chicken with a fork, return to sauce and add the parsley. Adjust seasoning.

4. Parmesan Béchamel Sauce: In a saucepan, melt the butter. Add the flour and stir well. Add the milk and bring to a boil, stirring with a whisk. Simmer for 1 minute. Stir in the Parmesan and nutmeg. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside.

Assembly

1. With rack in middle position, preheat oven to 350 F.

2. At bottom of 13 x 9-inch (33 x 23 cm) baking dish, spread 1 cup (250 ml) of chicken sauce and cover with layer of noodles. Spread half of remaining chicken sauce and cover with a layer of noodles. Cover with béchamel sauce and then the remaining noodles. Add remaining chicken sauce and sprinkle with mozzarella.

3. Bake 30 minutes. Finish cooking under broiler for 5 minutes. Let rest 10 minutes before serving. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION LAUNCHING THIS SEPTEMBER!

Liquid Assets

Go beyond the obvious

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Wine and food pairing is an exercise in avoiding the obvious. Too often foodies focus on the main feature of a dish and ignore secondary components when picking a liquid to match.

Sauces, spices and even vegetables will influence your dinner's outcome, masking what you might think is the upfront flavour generator.

This week's recipe is a classic example. The chicken might seem the decision maker, or maybe it's the pasta noodles. It's really the can of tomatoes.

Though the humble tomato may look harmless, it's an acid bomb that doesn't play well with most wines. At the heart of Ricardo's rustic lasagna, it demands you choose a wine with an equally acidic personality.

Many Italian grapes fit the bill. A white pinot grigio or red sangiovese or barbera has more than enough acidity.

I'm partial to a pinot noir from France or California. Chateau St. Jean's 2012 Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir ($18.99 - $19.95) is a plump and juicy Californian with plenty of tomato-friendly acid and bright red fruit.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Tried, tested and true combo

1. In a pot of salted boiling water, cook the pasta until al dente. Drain and set aside.

2. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven's broiler. Butter an 8-cup (2-litre) baking dish or four 2-cup (500 ml) ramekins.

3. In a saucepan, melt the butter. Add the flour and spices and cook for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Whisk in the evaporated milk and broth and bring to a boil.

4. Remove from the heat and add 250 ml (1 cup) of the cheddar cheese, 250 ml (1 cup) of the havarti cheese and the Velveeta cheese. Mix thoroughly. Add the pasta and heat through. Adjust the seasoning.

Ingredients

- 3/4 lb (375 g) short macaroni
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) butter
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1/2 tsp (2.5 ml) dry mustard
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) onion powder
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) garlic powder
- 1 can 370 ml evaporated milk
- 1 cup (250 ml) chicken broth
- 3 cups (750 ml) grated yellow sharp cheddar cheese
- 2 cups (500 ml) grated havarti cheese
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) cubed Velveeta cheese
- Salt and pepper

This Mac and Cheese recipe serves six. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

5. Spoon into the prepared baking dish or ramekins. Sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Bake for about 5 minutes or until the cheese has lightly browned. RICARDO

Dysfunction gets HD treatment on Day 1

NHL. Maple Leafs putting out fires already as training camp opens in Toronto

Leaf hopefuls Antoine Bibeau and Christopher Gibson watch Nazem Kadri shoot promotional material during the opening day of training camp on Thursday morning. LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Randy Carlyle was at the back of the room when the first question about his job security was asked, and he was there for the second one, too. His general manager, Dave Nonis, answered the first one, "Is that different than most years? I mean, really." Carlyle, who has been through the wars, grinned.

It's going to be that kind of season, probably, though the grinning isn't guaranteed. Brendan Shanahan has moved deliberately since being handed the keys to the Leafs in April, but both Nonis and Carlyle had their assistants chopped away from underneath them; there were some in the NHL who were convinced Carlyle already had another job lined up. He's still here, and he's grinning.

"It's just another year as far as I'm concerned," said Carlyle on Thursday, the opening day of training camp. "I have a job to do. I have an opportunity to change this group, to earn the respect back for this hockey club."

That's a big ask. The Leafs have made the playoffs in one 48-game season in the past decade, and last season they collapsed down the stretch and finished 22nd in the league. Carlyle was given a two-year extension when his assistants were fired, but he wasn't given any additional stars on his roster to work with. He wasn't even given an obvious impact player. He was given mostly grinders. He did get to keep the potentially rising stocks of Jake Gardiner — along with Nazem Kadri and Morgan Rielly.

So he mused about adding Joffrey Lupul to the top line instead of James van Riemsdyk, and hinted that guys whose big ability is fighting might no longer fit. Carlyle hasn't been given much that's new, and he has to fix it. Nonis was asked: Do you think Carlyle has to change the way he coaches?

"No," said Nonis, "No, I don't. I think the coaches coach the players that they get ... I don't think Randy has to necessarily change the way he coaches."

No? Carlyle himself talked about how he asked the team to change last season, and they did not.

"Well, I think we have to change," said Carlyle. "We begged, borrowed, stole, tried to convince them we had to play a more puck-possession game, early in the season. We did that from the middle of November on. But then we got injuries, we got suspensions, we got people that weren't available to us. Through the month of December we had Nazem Kadri, Peter Holland, Trevor Smith and Jay McClement as our centres. And they got us through. We got through that. But after that point, we all know what happened."

Well, Toronto was one of the worst puck-possession teams in hockey is what happened, all year long; they were outshot by the widest margin in the league, and even great goaltending couldn't save them.

Assistant coaches gone, the front office partially cleared, and Randy Carlyle is standing in the spotlight, with a team that needs fixing. The new boss will be watching. And nobody knows what really comes next. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Crosby, Malkin dinged up already

Penguins forwards Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin will be held out of the start of training camp as a precaution with what the team described as minor injuries.

Ghost of Selanne lingers in Anaheim

Teemu Selanne managed to make a stir on the first day of the Anaheim Ducks' training camp even after his retirement.

Coach Bruce Boudreau reacted with disappointment Thursday after hearing about Selanne's fierce criticism of Boudreau in a new biography.

Selanne retired at age 43 following a 21-season NHL career, spent mostly in Anaheim. His disagreements with Boudreau last season about his playing time and role were hardly secrets, but Selanne's decision to air them in public surprised the Ducks.

Several media outlets obtained copies of the Finnish book and translated the passages criticizing Boudreau's decisions regarding Selanne, who felt betrayed by his dwindling role in his final season. Selanne, who flirted with retirement for seven consecutive summers, said he might have played another year if Boudreau wasn't the Ducks' coach. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CFL. Veteran QBs Ray and Glenn putting up solid numbers as many of their peers are struggling with injuries

They are two of the oldest quarterbacks in the CFL — and the healthiest.

Unlike most of their CFL peers this season, Kevin Glenn, 35, of the B.C. Lions and Ricky Ray, 34, of the Toronto Argonauts have escaped serious injury. They will continue their survival missions Friday when the Lions host the Argonauts.

Glenn will attempt to lead the Lions (7-4) to their third consecutive win while Ray tries to help the Argos (3-8), who have lost four straight, bounce back from an embarrassing loss in Calgary, where they squandered a 29-10 halftime lead.

Argos QB Ricky Ray passes against the Lions on Aug. 16 at Rogers Centre. DAVE SANDFORD/GETTY IMAGES

Ray and Glenn rank among the league's top QBs. Ray, who has completed 270 of 398 passes, leads the league in touchdowns with 20 and ranks second in passing yards (2,922). Glenn, who the Lions acquired as quarterback insurance from Ottawa due to Lulay's injury, has completed 181 of 283 passes for a fourth-best 2,412 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Ray has already excelled despite injuries to key receivers, including Chad Owens, who will return Friday after being sidelined with a leg injury suffered in an Aug. 23 loss to Edmonton.

The Lions remain more concerned about controlling Ray than his pass-catchers. Unlike many of Ray's critics, Lions defensive line coach Carl Hairston praised the Toronto QB for being elusive.

"He's a guy that you've gotta keep under control, because he's gonna scramble," said Hairston. "And when he scrambles, he's gonna find somebody open. I think he's a great quarterback. What I like about him is, he progresses. He'll go from one receiver to another." THE CANADIAN PRESS

A's slide out of top wild-card spot

The Oakland Athletics kept sliding, falling out of the top AL wild-card spot with a 7-2 loss to Texas on Thursday that gave the Rangers a three-game sweep.

The latest loss dropped the A's a half-game behind idle Kansas City for the first wild-spot slot. Oakland owned the best record in the big leagues as recently as Aug. 15.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
A relationship may be going through a rough patch but the planets indicate there's nothing to worry about. You could still make things easier by not giving them the impression you don't care, when you do.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
It doesn't matter what threats you make today, a work colleague will move at their own speed — and that's dead slow! Grit your teeth and bear it.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Your priority now must be to get out into the world and do what Geminis do best to have fun. Career and money worries can be left until another day.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
There will be good and bad days but there will be a lot more of the former if you change the way you assess what is "good" and "bad". You can be far too hard on yourself.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
However difficult your current situation, you'll handle it with ease. You need to realize that whatever you have to face is what you're meant to face.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
What happened in the past is irrelevant to your present situation. Look back only to learn a lesson or two then look and move forward.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Don't beat yourself up about something that went wrong. If you indulge your emotions, you may lose sight of good things you have to be thankful for.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Something that made perfect sense a while ago now seems to make no sense at all. A day or two from now you will have forgotten why you thought it was so important.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may have strong views on controversial topics but the planets warn this is not the right time to make an issue of them. Wait until the Sun moves in your favour on the 23rd.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You may be having a great deal of fun but have you considered the consequences which could arise from some of your more impulsive actions?

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The answers you seek are easily found, but only if you ask the right questions in the right way. You're an Aquarius, so think, speak and act big.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
The best way to deal with a negative situation is to ignore it. If you do, it'll quickly shrink in importance. The more you focus on what's going wrong, the longer it will stick around.
